Matt,

I agree 100% with Randa. No apologies necessary. This is a frustrating and confusing situation, which we all want to be sure is adequately addressed.

Thanks,

Naeha

I can only speak for myself when I say that no apology is necessary and the discussion did not make me uncomfortable. The situation is understandably frustrating.

Kasey, Naeha, and Randa:

Sorry that my frustration with this response came out in the meeting today as I did not intend to make anyone uncomfortable. This is a complicated site and I am probably oversimplifying how we should respond. Again, my apologies and hopefully something good will happen at this site soon.

Good Afternoon Mr. Barnett,

In order to standardize the information sharing for this response we would like to initiate a new process.

To start, submit to us a detailed plan describing actions ArcelorMittal is taking to identify the source. In this plan include at a minimum the incident description, actions taken to date, resources on scene and a list of possible sources of the discharge. Also, address what will be done if the current plan of checking on the sumps three times a day doesn't provide results.

Below is the daily information we are requesting for outfalls 001, 009/010, and each sump.

Outfall #:
Time Observed:
Substance Discharged (Y/N):
Substance Color:
Substance Size:
Amount recovered by vac truck:
Estimated amount of oil recovered:
Length of sorbent boom recovered:
Reported by:

Sump #:
Time Observed:
Substance present:
Substance color:
Reported by:

If you have any questions let me know.

Very Respectfully,

MST1 Sean Fitzgerald
